International Peace.

By Bulletin Leased Wire.

New York, Dec. 10.—Baroness Bertha Von Suttner, of Vienna, one of the most distinguished women in the international peace movement, who was honored with the Nobel prize in 1905 was the guest of honor at a dinner of the New York Peace Society at the Hotel Astor tonight.

Andrew Carnegie, presiding at the dinner, declared that the senate's grievance, which led to the non-ratification of the proposed treaty with Great Britain, France and Germany was not irremediable, and he looked forward without discouragement to the early solution of the great treaty.

Say Railway Board Should Investigate Watered Stock

This is Proposal Endorsed by E. J. Fream, Secretary of the United Farmers' Association—Largely Extended Powers to Railway Board Suggested.

To restrain the railway companies from attracting new settlers until such time as they can handle the traffic that they have at present, to prevent illegal discrimination in the distribution of cars, to ascertain the amount of watered stock in railway companies, and to be enabled to enforce their orders by the infliction of fines are some of the extended powers which should be conferred on the railway commission, according to a resolution adopted by the United Farmers' Association at a meeting at Nelson, B.C., on Monday.

The suggestions will be submitted to the board of railway commissioners at their meeting at Nelson, B.C., on Monday. Four of the suggestions are as follows:

1.—That the board be authorized to consider various complaints of which notice has been served on the railway companies. Further the attention of the board will be called to the following matters and orders from the board will be taken:

2.—That the railway companies be authorized to take such action as they may deem fit to prevent the railway companies from attracting new settlers until such time as they can handle the traffic that they have at present, to prevent illegal discrimination in the distribution of cars, to ascertain the amount of watered stock in railway companies, and to be enabled to enforce their orders by the infliction of fines are some of the extended powers which should be conferred on the railway commission, according to a resolution adopted by the United Farmers' Association at a meeting at Nelson, B.C., on Monday.

11.—I shall call attention to the fact that the C. P. R. Co. ignored the order of the board and did not fulfil promises of the chief officers of the C. P. R. Co. made to me and to the last chairman of the board, Mr. Justice Macleod, in the matter of restoring certain public roads the company had destroyed, during and after the construction of their railway.

12.—That the board order an investigation as to why railway officials are permitted to persecute persons who dare to criticize railway corporations.
